

Highlights from Saunders students on co-op

What Do You Do?

I assist Senior Internal Auditors and department directors in Internal Audit reports and I follow up on previous Audits we have done. Limited Scope Audit looks at internal controls and how we can make processes better and more efficient. We try to look for things that could possibly go wrong and look at internal controls and weakness to make things more efficient

Accounting Major Class of 2015

Co-op Company: RIT Internal Audit Department

Co-op Position: Internal Auditor Co-op Student

Where Do You Do Your Work?

Usually students get a desk or cubicle, but I actually got my own office in Orange Hall. One reason I get my own office is because a lot of our work is dealing with confidential information.

What's Great About Your Co-op?

In Accounting, some go into Tax Co-op or Audit co-ops, but a lot of accounting students don't get a chance to experience an Internal Audit Co-op. The people I work with are all Certified Public Accounted and that's what I want to do, eventually. In my Co-op experience, I deal with department heads, the Vice President, Senior Vice President, even President Destler gets to read my reports. A lot of co-ops get to do their taxes and leave.

Why RIT/Saunders?

I wanted something close to home so I was deciding between RIT and St. John Fisher. I chose RIT because of its diverse student body and their co-op program. RIT is a place where you could go for a good academic experience and there are so many clubs. We are exposed to so many clubs, programs, extracurricular activities and we really get the most out of college life.

Hassan Ali

"The co-op I'm in now is helping me become secure in what I want to do. It's not just a desk job, I'm getting actual experience in Internal Audits and I'm working with heads of departments so I'm really getting experience in what I want to do. I hope to go to RIT for my MBA. In the next 5 years, I want to become a part of CPA firm and become an Audit Manager. In 10 years I hope to become a partner."

R·I·T

RIT is a place where brilliant minds assemble and collaborate, where they pool together their individual talents across disciplines in service of big projects and big ideas.
